

Family of George McKenzie (1844-1926) and Belinda Walker.

George McKenzie was the second son and third child of Joseph McKenzie and Margaret Klingaman

George McKenzie was born October 11, 1844 at the family home in McKenzie Hollow, near Pocohontas, Pennsylvania. His early years were spent on the farm. The family spent much of their lifetime clearing and improving the land they had received from Margaret's father, George Klingaman. After receiving an eighth grade education, George taught school part time for some years. He married Belinda Walker June 25, 1867 and continued to teach school and help on the farm. By the time his father, Joseph McKenzie, died January 23, 1879, they had four children, three boys and a daughter, but he continued to work the farm and to teach school. During this time another son and two more daughters were born. But the family farm now had to be sold to settle the inheritance, and George could not finance the deal. Because teachers were now required to have twelve years education, his teaching days were over. His asthma was bothering him, and his doctor advised him to go west.

Now forty-two years old and with a large family, he would be a big farmer in the West. Contacting a real estate agent at Carleton, Nebraska, he proceeded by train to St. Joe and up the St. Joe and G.I.R.R. to his destination. He wanted no more rocks, hills, or trees, and his choice of a location was a good one. He took possession of the S.W<sup>1/4</sup> of Section 24-3-3- early in 1886, buying from John Larkins for $2,600.00 and carrying a loan of $700. Today this is one of the best producing farms in the County. George McKenzie was the first farmer in the County to grow winter wheat, which in years to come would be the main crop of the Plains.

He brought Belinda and the six children to Nebraska. Edward, the eldest, was teaching school until June 1, when he followed the family. His mother, Margaret Klingaman McKenzie moved into Meyersdale with Clara, the youngest daughter. This meant that the McKenzie family had all pulled their roots from McKenzie Hollow, but they were not forgotten because nearly ninety years later the neighbors still show where the farm was.
